

ANTI-BULLYING POLICY

2022/2023

(Governors Approval – October 2022)

Review (Open/ September 2024)

OUR ETHOS

We share the beliefs of the Anti-Bullying alliance when stating that Wrotham School:

- believes bullying in any form is wrong and should not be tolerated, and that any environment that encourages bullying, or shows indifference to prejudice and discrimination is unacceptable;
- believes bullying is a behaviour choice and that anyone can be encouraged to change their behaviour;
- respects difference and welcome diversity in our children, young people and in society in general, and believe our work should be inclusive of all;
- believes children and young people should have the right to feel safe, secure and valued, and that creating a safe environment and dealing with bullying is our shared responsibility;
- believes children and young people should actively participate in decisions that affect them and should be supported in taking responsibility for their choices and subsequent actions;
- supports a range of positive strategies to deal with bullying and actively challenge the use of humiliation, fear, ridicule and other similar approaches in an effort to reduce bullying;
- Believes that people should be treated with respect and courtesy.

This policy is designed to be clear, uncomplicated and unapologetic in its approach to tackling bullying and allegations of bullying.

WHAT WILL THE SCHOOL DO TO WHEN YOU REPORT BULLYING?

STAGE ONE

- The school will listen to your views and wishes in a caring and supportive way.
- The school will investigate any concerns that you report including speaking to other students involved to establish what has happened.
- The school will listen carefully to your wishes and take all appropriate actions to keep you safe and looked after during any investigation.

STAGE TWO

Once we have established that bullying has taken place, we will look to ensure the following happens:

- Any behaviour which has broken the school rules is sanctioned in line with our behaviour policy.
- We will then advise that a repair and rebuild meeting takes place, supervised by a specialist member of staff, in which a restorative conversation is held with the aim of apologies being made and an agreement formed of how to move forward.
- At this stage it may well be that both students feel they can exist without further agreement and as friends with issues now resolved.
- If we are not able to hold a restorative meeting, then agreements will be made in individual meetings with parents present.
- We call this agreement a “line in the sand”, if this agreed line is crossed then serious sanctions will be applied.
- If agreement cannot be found, then the school will direct this “line in the sand” expectation using our own professional judgment and authority.

STAGE THREE

- The school will monitor the agreement and ensure that all involved are following the plan made.
- If students breach the “line in the sand” agreement, we consider this to be a serious issue and this will be considered persistent/ serious bullying. This will lead to serious consequences such as exclusion from school. This is likely to include the risk of fixed term or permanent exclusion from school.

WHAT IS A “LINE IN THE SAND” AGREEMENT?

Bullying is often more complex than it would first seem and sometimes starts with one off social issues or disagreement which cause distress and upset. Other times it is simply a repeated and unprovoked case of someone being nasty and unpleasant to someone else. Often bullying starts within friendship groups.

Either way, it needs to be resolved so that all involved can come to school feeling safe, happy and ready to learn. In order to achieve this the school has to make its expectations clear regarding conduct.

A line in the sand agreement is where both parties agree to a set of expectations that will eliminate the bullying or disagreement between individuals or groups of students.

For example, it might be agreed that 2 students will avoid speaking to each other or will not contact/ add each other on social media.

Once this “line in the sand” has been agreed then it is made clear that all parties agree not to cross this line and are made aware of the serious consequences that follow. That way, if that if anyone does not conform to this agreement, they are clearly making a choice to bully or intimidate the other child and can be very clear that the sanction will be serious.

Once agreed, a line in the sand is non-negotiable and students do not get a second chance to comply with this following the agreement being made.

A line in the sand agreement is communicated to parents of all students involved so they can support their child with this process.

WHAT IS BULLYING?

The Anti- Bullying alliance defines bullying as:

“Bullying is the repetitive, intentional hurting of one person or group by another person or group, where the relationship involves an imbalance of power. It can happen face to face or online”.

There are four key elements to this definition:

- hurtful
- repetition
- power imbalance
- intentional

The Government describes bullying as:

There is no legal definition of bullying. However, it’s usually defined as behaviour that is:

- repeated
- intended to hurt someone either physically or emotionally
- often aimed at certain groups, for example because of race, religion, gender or sexual orientation

It takes many forms and can include:

- physical assault
- teasing
- making threats
- name calling
- cyberbullying - bullying via mobile phone or online (for example email, social networks and instant messenger)

From our experience at Wrotham School

- Bullying can take place in person or online – when bullying takes place online it is referred to as cyber bullying.
- Often – bullying takes place repeatedly over a period of time.
- Bullying often starts and gathers momentum online on social media.
- Bullying can be both physical and emotional.

- Often bullying involves groups of students “ganging up” on others.
- Bullying is rarely, if ever, provoked; it is always unwanted and persistent
- Bullying has a serious and sustained impact on a child’s mental health and wellbeing.

What probably isn’t bullying?

“One off” conflicts are rarely bullying – these include basic and simple arguments, fallings out, disagreements, changes of friendship groups that happen naturally over time and normal day to day events that are isolated and unintentional such as picking sports teams or spending time with other friends. Bickering, isolated incidents of arguing. A physical altercation may not always be bullying depending on the situation, what caused it and the individual’s role in this.

A “one off” incident where the other party recognises their behaviour was wrong, apologises and corrects this and it does not happen again is not bullying.

This doesn’t mean the person feeling bullied doesn’t feel bad – they do, but this can be supported and helped in other more appropriate ways.

RAISING FURTHER CONCERN

If you are not happy with the outcome of an investigation or outcome regarding bullying at school or if you wish to make any complaint/ raise concern, you can do so via our complaints policy. This will ensure your concerns are heard, reviewed and responded to formally at an appropriate level.
